Historical background

<https://www.un.org/millenniumgoals/bkgd.shtml>

- Industrial Revolution and Development of Europe/United States were largely based on the explored and imported resources (materials and slaves) from Africa, Asia and Latin America, which resulted in poverty/hunger and delayed development in such places. The socioeconomic disparities in the current world should be solved as a responsibility of developed countries.
- Millennium Summit:
 - In September 2000, building upon a decade of major United Nations conferences and summits, world leaders came together at United Nations Headquarters in New York to adopt the United Nations Millennium Declaration, committing their nations to a new global partnership to reduce extreme poverty and setting out a series of time-bound targets - with a deadline of 2015 - that have become known as the Millennium Development Goals.
- The eight Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) – which range from halving extreme poverty to halting the spread of HIV/AIDS and providing universal primary education, all by the target date of 2015 – form a blueprint agreed to by all the world's countries and all the world's leading development institutions. They have galvanized unprecedented efforts to meet the needs of the world's poorest.
 - 1. Eradicate Extreme Poverty and Hunger, 2. Achieve Universal Primary Education, 3. Promote Gender Equality and Empower Women, 4. Reduce Child Mortality, 5. Improve Maternal Health, 6. Combat HIV/AIDS, Malaria and Other Diseases, 7. Ensure Environmental Sustainability, 8. Global Partnership for Development
- With time passing, UN has needed to develop newer goals especially since 2010. That's Beyond 2015 (a.k.a. Post Millennium Development Goals; see, <http://www.beyond2015.org/>). Results of workshops/discussion/negotiation are pooled at the web-site, "The world we want 2015" (<http://www.worldwewant2015.org/>) After the Rio+20 (<http://www.uncsd2012.org/>) in 2012, all member states agreed with 17 Sustainable Development Goals as new goals.

Framework from "Beyond 2015" to "The world we want 2015"

Rio+20 (<https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/rio20>)

- The United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development - or Rio+20 - took place in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil on 20-22 June 2012. It resulted in a focused political outcome document which contains clear and practical measures for implementing sustainable development.
- In Rio, Member States decided to launch a process to develop a set of Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), which will build upon the Millennium Development Goals and converge with the post 2015 development agenda.
- The Conference also adopted ground-breaking guidelines on green economy policies.
- Governments also decided to establish an intergovernmental process under the General Assembly to prepare options on a strategy for sustainable development financing.
- Governments also agreed to strengthen the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) on several fronts with action to be taken during the 67th session of the General Assembly.
- They also agreed to establish a high-level political forum for sustainable development. Decisions on its detailed form are expected to be taken during the upcoming session of the General Assembly, with the aim of having the first session of the forum at the beginning of the 68th session of the Assembly.
